TUESDAY HORNING, OCTOBER 21, 187 RELIGIOUS DRIFT AND DISCUSSION

THE French Government will not allow Methodist ministers to preach to the sol

tral Africa isn't entirely "smooth sailing" in all localities. A missionary writes that they are in risk of their lives constantly,

Tits Missionary Review comments un favorably and vigorously upon the practice of giving only large aggregates of expenditures in accounts of American mission societies. In one report the receipts cover forty-two pages and the expenditures less than two, the first item being one of near ly $00,000. In another the first line on the credit side is "Western Turkey Mission -Remittances, cost of exchange and purchases, $70,630 83."

Tus Mennoultes, as is well known, hole to close communion. Their reasons for so doing are given in their newspaper, the Herald of Truth. They believe that those persons who commune together should be of one mind and one faith. Their object tions to communing with members of other denominations are that: First-They uphold war. Second-They indulge in the pride and fashions of the world. Third - They swear oaths. Fourth-They belong to secret societies. Fifth-They defend infant baptism.

A STATE convention on the Sunday uestion is to be held in Boston, Mass. October 21 and 22. The Rev. Drs. Thomas Armitage, Henry W. Warren, W. De Loss Love, Joseph Cook, J. O. Peck, Henry M. King, A.J. Gordan, Alvah Hovery, William Rice, L. W. Bacon and other persons are to read papers on topics arranged un-der the titles "Rationale of the Sabbath," "The Sabbath in Nature," "The Sabbath in History," "The Sabbath in the State Society." Judge Strong, of the United States Supreme Court, will read a paper on "The Civil as Distinguished from he Religious Sabbath: What is to be Expected from Civil Law."

THE Presbytery of Edinburgh has lately been agitated over permitting the setting up of an organ in the church at North A majority of the congregation want it, but a conservative, tenacious mi-nority are hotly opposed. When the ated the case to the Presbytery, Mr. Macpherson, a brother member, said the pastor's narrative re-minded him of what he had read of Egyptian temples, where they were fine paint ings, grand architecture and everything center there was a miserable cat. Here sy had a miserable box of whistles in the center of it all. He held it to be a crying sin to bring up a young, useful, talented minister to occupy the time of the Presbytery merely for the purpose of introducing this miserable thing. The case is not settled yet.

THE recent pilgrimage to Lourdes and La Salette, in France, and the miracles which are alleged to have taken place there, have called forth among the better class of French journals great indignation, and M. John Lemoinne, the well-known writer in the Journal des Debats, says: "It is now impossible to recognize the Christian religiou in the fetichism and miracle warehouse business which are sought to be imposed upon us." "When the question is asked," he says, "what has become of Jesus Christ? we get no reply; we meet pressed in order to make place for a religion of trickery, of bric-a-brac, and a toi-lette-maker." And he adds: "The Holy Virgin, whom Christians believe to be of heaven, is always out, and she goes out in order to walk about in the evening in the resentative in place of Whittaker, the present extravagant costumes. Then we have St. Joseph's month, another new devotion, and we shall soon have months divoted to all the Saints in the calendan."

The Christian Union, writing about the ravision of creeds, says:

"Neither the Thirty-nine Articles, the Westminster Confession nor the Method dist Articles of Belief could be revised without dividing the Episcopal, the Presbyterian or the Methodist Church; and such a division, with the further divisions that would follow, would be a far greate evil than any that the petty improvement in the creeds would remedy; for no creeds that are now conceivable, much less any that are now conceivable, much less any that are now possible, would be long satisfactory, or satisfactory for great numbers, Creed-making for the present, and for many years to come, is simply impracticable, and it is useless to look in this direction for any accommodation to the liberal spirit and tendency of the age. A creed, like a political platform, should merely indicate somewhere about where the church as a whole stands and be in a general way expressive of its principles. But as one may be a good Republican or Democrat without adopting the whole platform of his party, so one ought to be able to be a good.

The definition of the Sabbath as a day

Tue definition of the Sabbath as a day in which men are to be "taken up the whole time in the public and private exercises, and in the duties of necessity and merey" is buried in a deeper grave in New England than in the Empire State. To refuse to see this fact—to go quietly to church with your wife on your arm and your hymn-book in your hand, while in your hearing the hoot and shriek of the locomotive and the steamboat mingle discordantly with the chimes of the church bells, and in your sight men alink down the side streets to lounge in neighboring grog-shops or openly resort by thout sands to the Sunday excursion train or steamboat—and then to be inside and the sunday excursion train or steamboat—and then to be inside are reyes beholds the evil and describes it, is but a sorry way of serving the day or its Maker. The Puritan Sabbath, we repeat, is not going, it is gone; and the business of American churches to-day is not to reinstate the ruined observances of their fathers, but to search the Scriptures, the naual soothing remedies. in which men are to be "taken up the

they are in risk of their lives constantly, and that their existence is "a daily dodging of fate."

The First Assistant Postmaster General is "gone for" by a correspondent of the Presbyterian for Sabbath breaking. "With a congenial company of ten others, whom a telegram soberly styles 'ladies and gentlemen,' he recently spent an entire Sabbath on a pleasure excursion in Wisconsin."

The religious newspapers are again discussing the tobacco question. The New England Mct'ocitat calls the smoking-car. "a school of vice on the line of the grogshop," The Interior says: "H a man could take one good cigar a day—an after supper comforter—and ask for nor feel the need of any more, we would not have the heart to deny him the luxury."

The Missionary Review comments un-

AT Glasgow, recently, Mrs. Booth (the wife of the famous "General" of the Salva tion Army) delivered a lecture in which the explained that, as aggressive Chris ians, their efforts were directed chiefly to the lower class of the population, and hose persons at the head of affairs had acted on the principle that novelty is bet er than stagnation. They had according ly used every means in their power, such as the "Hallelujah Lasses," converted thiaves and ruffians of every description to attract audiences from the slums. The extraordinary expedients adopted drew the very lowest to their meetings. They went for a time from motives of curiosity but at last God got His hook in thei aws, and they were then obliged to at end." The army consisted of 120 corps with 180 officers. They had 8,256 speak ers, who were ready to preach under an ircumstances and at any risk. They had 143 theatres, music halls and wareho where they held annually 50,000 meetings Besides these, there were 40,000 open ai neetings, at which more than 2,000,000 ersons were obliged to hear something o the Gospel. Their income was $100,000 yearly, $70,000 being subscribed by the

The chances of the Republicans carrying he House of Representatives in the Forty seventh Congress are looming up. It is considered that they have a good deal nore than a fighting chance, and under the excitement and pressure of the Presidential campaign may indeed not only succeed in turning the Democratic major-ity but getting possession, with a majority ranging all the way from twenty to thirty Pake, for instance, Ohio. The Congres sional delegation now stands, Republican Democrats 11. Undoubtedly the first act of the newly elected Legislature will be to redistrict the State for Congressional be to redistrict the State for Congressional purposes, and the Republicens can do this without sady destroying the symmetry of the map, and give themselves 15 Representatives, allowing the Democrats only 5, and at the same time make them fight hard for one of these. This will be a gain of six to start with. The result in lowa, too, indicates that, both of the districts now, represented by the Greenbackers can be regained by the Greenbackers can be regained by the Republicans. This will be a gain of two more. In Indiana there is almost a certainty, that the 6th (De La-Martyr's) district can be carried by the Republicans, and that the chances are even with both parties for carrying the 4th. This is another gain. The reports from North Carolina are that the Republicans have very good prospects for carrying cans have very good prospects for carrying wo of the districts, in that State, and two of the districts, in that State, and a strong effort will be made to get three. In New York the chances are considered good for a gain of two for the Republicans, and the same number in Pennsylvania. A gain is also expected in the 3d Wisconsin district. With the effort which the Republicans will put forth in the 4th and 5th Maine districts, now represented by Ladd and Murch, will also be reclaimed. The revival of business which is now sweeping over the country, may also have the effect of giving to the Republicans the Second Connecticut district; and especially so if Tilden is not the Presidential nominee and Senator, Barnum is apathetic. The Thirteenth Illinois district is one which Thirteenth Illinois district is one which the Republicans feel sure frey can reclaim with the "rag baby" out of the issue, as it probably will be. It was carried last year by Stevenson, a Democratic Greenbacker, by only a few hundred majority. Oregon will probably also send a Republican Representative in place of Whittaker, the present incumbent, who are the last election did not reserve a function of the probability of the probability of the probability of the last election did not reserve a function.
